

Carolyn Lord Workshop

Course Description:

The portability and vibrancy of watercolor makes it ideal for plein air painting in a rose garden! This three-day workshop will be held outdoors at the Municipal Rose Garden of San Jose to paint roses.

There will be presentations on how to organize the watercolor palette; pigment selection; color perspective; drawing and composition; silhouettes, light and shadow; and painting strategies.

There will be painting demonstrations each day and throughout the day, individual attention will be given to each student.

Students should have a familiarity with drawing, composition, and plein air painting in any media. Carolyn has taken atelier drawing classes and has done some painting in oils, so she is prepared to explain her concepts to artists who are new to watercolor painting.
